..... developing a brighter playground

Do you need to develop your school playground and make breaktimes and playtimes safer and more fun?

If the answer is yes to any of the following questions, then the Primary Playground Resource Pack is for you!

- Would the children at your school like an opportunity to explore new activities enjoy breaktimes in out of school hours? .....
- Is there a lack of physical activity during breaktimes in school? .....
- Does football dominate the playground exclude other young people from the playground area? .....
- Are there any problems with bullying, racism or social exclusion during breaktimes in school? .....
- Could you use a resource to help re-motivate your lunchtime supervisors, helping them feel safe, confident have more fun at breaktimes? .....

Since January 2001, the Youth Sport Trust in conjunction with Nike has managed the exciting, innovative and successful primary playground project, Zoneparc (a primary playground project aimed at tackling social exclusion and increasing activity levels of young people by introducing innovative breaktime activities and playground management systems to make breaktimes safer and more fun for everyone in school).

The Zoneparc principles and examples of good practice are now available to share with all local education authorities, primary schools and key partners in the newly produced Primary Playground Resource Pack.

The Primary Playground Resource Pack provides a series of steps to support schools in the development, change and improvement of the playground, from involving the children, redesigning the playground, to training key staff and monitoring the impact and change.

Playground Development Resource Guide – presentation binder consisting:

- Teachers' guide
- Practical ideas for schools
- Resource pack templates
- Lunchtime supervisors handbook

- 25 (A6) laminated activity support cards to be used in conjunction with the 15 (A3) cards
- Handbook aimed at supporting lunchtime supervisors.

Messages from schools who have already developed their playground:

Headteacher: “Now we have developed and changed our playground, there is no more fear from the children in the playground – there is real pride in the playground and school.”

Lunchtime supervisor: “I really enjoy working with the children, introducing new activities, instead of dealing with fights, cuts and bruises.”

Playground Leader (Year 6): “I like being a playground leader – I like helping the smaller children to have fun and learn new things – I like feeling important.”
